Making Inferences in Daily Life

Directions: Practice making inferences by drawing conclusions based on the short, real-world scenarios below.

❶ The bus station is full of people, perhaps three times as many as normal. Passengers look frustrated and annoyed. It is the first rainy morning of the year and the radio news is sharing that there are several car accidents all over town.
What might be happening? _____

❷ The park ranger lights a match and smiles. He adds extra wood to the fire. It is autumn now, and the national park is fairly quiet. This is a perfect way to end the season.
What might be happening? _____

❸ The lights on the street go dark. It happens all at once, like someone just flipped a switch. Televisions, computers, telephones—they all don't work right now. There is not much to do but light a candle and wait.
What might be happening? _____
